DESCRIPTION

During the game, players impersonate six characters to experience the information security dangers that can affect them during an average day at work. Players must pick security awareness skills they find most important and use them as they encounter various security-related events in each round. Without proper defense, these can become incidents with attackers getting their hands on their devices, passwords, internal or sensitive information. Some attacks can be tied to certain locations or inherent traits of characters, so players must be vigilant and identify relevant infosec skills for each situation. And what's the goal? To reach the end of the workday with as many assets and pieces of information still in their possession as they can.
